Vehicle Maintenance by Mileage

Odometer in, dates out

ODOMETER IN, DATES OUT

Every service interval is published in miles, and every calendar in your life runs on months. Write your annual mileage once on this page and the journal converts one into the other, so nothing gets done late because nobody did the arithmetic.

FIELD	VEHICLE ONE	VEHICLE TWO
Year, make, model
Current odometer
Miles driven a year
Miles a month, annual divided by 12
Oil change interval you use
Next oil change at
Tires rotated next at
Registration and inspection month

How to turn miles into a date. Difference in miles divided by miles a month equals months from now. Example: 3,000 miles until the next service at 1,000 miles a month is three months. Write the date, not the mileage alone, or it will slide.

This is a printable planning document, not professional advice. It is sold as a reference and a record keeping tool. It is not legal, financial, tax, medical, veterinary, engineering, agronomic or safety certification, and it does not replace a licensed professional, your local code official, your county extension office, or the manufacturer of any product you use.

You are responsible for your own decisions. Conditions differ by place, climate, equipment and person. Read the whole document before relying on any figure, date or interval in it, confirm anything that matters against the current official source, and use your own judgment before acting.

Some subjects here can cause injury, illness or property damage if done wrong. That includes food preservation and curing, work around animals and livestock, electrical work, generators, fuel, tools, ladders, roofs, water systems, and any task described in the safety material. Follow the current official source (the USDA or National Center for Home Food Preservation, your county extension, your veterinarian, the manufacturer, your local building code) wherever it differs from this document. The official source always wins.
