The Traveler's Notice Pages

The notices, customs and warnings worth knowing before you go

BEFORE YOU GO

Every entry on this page is the kind of thing that ruins a day at a border, a door, or a trailhead. None of it is advice. All of it is "check first".

- ☐ Passport valid at least six months past your return date
- ☐ Visas, and whether you need one for transit as well
- ☐ Medication: is it legal where you are going
- ☐ Drone: does the country, state, or park allow it at all
- ☐ Food and agricultural products: declare everything, discard nothing quietly
- ☐ Cash requirements, and whether it must be clean, unmarked notes
- ☐ International driving permit and insurance
- ☐ Travel insurance, and what it actually covers
- ☐ Copies of documents, one digital, one on paper
- ☐ Emergency contact and the nearest embassy's address
- ☐ Local phone plan or offline maps downloaded
- ☐ Prescription in original packaging with the pharmacy label

THE FOUR QUESTIONS THAT PREVENT MOST PROBLEMS

QUESTION	WHY
Is there a local law about this thing	Laws you never heard of are the ones travelers break
Is this a public place where a sign would be posted	If yes, read the sign before you act
Would a local person do it in front of their parents	A decent rule for behavior anywhere
Can I prove what I am carrying	Imported goods, animals, plants, and cash all need a story

> Rules change. Nothing here replaces the current guidance from the country you are entering and the US State Department. Verify before you travel, and again a week before you fly.
